

Make Plans Now to Attend the Annual Third District Livestock Show in Hope September 25-30

Washington

By BRUCE BLOSSOM
NEA Washington Correspondent

In the public's mind, an excess profits tax has come to be viewed as effective insurance against profiteering in wartime. Therefore, it's taken for granted that Congress is alert to the political necessities, will approve such a levy during the present limited war in Korea.

The lawmakers might well vote for it even if added revenues weren't needed to help pay defense costs; but the fact is they are needed.

However, the effort in the House to attach an excess profits provision to the current $4,500,000 new tax bill is ill-advised. This effort failed in the Senate and it should meet a similar fate in the House.

The pending tax bill is essentially a corporate and individual income tax measure. It was drafted after careful consideration by the tax-framing Senate Finance Committee. But neither that committee nor its House counterpart, the Ways and Means group, has had time to study properly an excess profits proposal.

The proponents of immediate action on excess profits consequently are trying to "write the bill from the floor" — attach their plan to the existing bill without adequate preliminary study.

When this strategy was attempted in the Senate, Senator George, chairman of the Finance Committee, declared it would result in a bad tax law. George, who is an admitted conservation in financial affairs, said the profits plan put forward would actually tend to favor big corporations over smaller ones.

Apparently the plan offered in the House is generally the same. It would penalize companies whose profits weren't especially large in the postwar period used as a base, but whose earnings might grow in the time just ahead. Thus the growth of small enterprises, a cause dear to many a law-maker's heart could be seriously hampered by this kind of tax.

This problem merely illustrates that drafting a fair excess profits bill calls for painstaking care. It's not a job for offhand treatment or hasty floor amendment.

Furthermore, there is utterly no need for haste. Although the Korean war has been on for nearly three months, new war expenditures have not yet had large impact on industry. Nor will the effect of such outlays be felt heavily during the remainder of 1950.

In other words, business earnings in the last half of this year, whether higher or not, are not likely to fall into the category of "wartime excess profits." Any congressman who professes fear that business might reap unwaranted benefit from the Korean war is simply making political hay.

Congressional tax committees should indeed begin promptly to study all angles of the profits tax problem and should be ready with a balanced program when Congress returns in January. That will be time enough to catch any genuine wartime excess.

"Anybody's Ball Game Is Everybody's."

For three years straight now, we've had photo finishes in the American League pennant race. Last year it was the same in the National.

Watching from two to four teams battle it right down to the wire, it's hard to tell whether superiority in baseball play is becoming more common, or whether it has almost disappeared, and mediocrity is regaining supremacy.

Maybe we should blame it all on the "lively ball." When even pitchers can pop the ball into the bleachers for home runs, the old standards of measure between teams tend to fade out. A few "happy accident" homers and any near-contender might win. It's a bold man these days who, as late as Labor Day, would dare to guess he'll be the winner.

4-H Members Make Plans for Corn Show

The seventh annual Hempstead County 4-H Club Hybrid Corn Show will be held in early November during 4-H club achievement week.

At a county 4-H club meet last week twenty-six 4-H club members and adults leaders planned this annual event with County Agricultural Extension Agents, Oliver L. Adams and Byron Huddleston.

Arrangements for this year's 4-H hybrid corn show are in charge of the following 4-H club members: Burrell Smittle, chairman, Patmos; James Robert Fuller, Shover Springs; Bobby Rosenbaum, Guerneville; and Macon Warren, Patmos.

As corn becomes mature in the 4-H club home farm field, a ten-car sample from each 4-H hybrid corn demonstration should be harvested and fumigated with carbon disulfide to kill any weevils that may be present. The ten-car exhibit may be brought to the Extension Office in the courthouse or Extension Service leaflet number 103 may be referred to for detailed information on protecting corn from insect injury. Corn Cribs should be cleaned and sprayed thoroughly now before the corn is harvested and stored.

THE SORROW MISS FREY

By Edwin Rau

Copyright 1950 by NBA Service, Inc.

TRUE STORY: The former Eddie Frey, whose marriage to Peter Paul had not been happy, is played in charge of Frey & Company, a successful advertising agency, under terms of his task force. The firm is threatened with the loss of the Morn-Glo account which would mean the end of the agency. Eddie is sure the man has "something up his sleeve." Northcott bowed from his great height. "So have I."

And he sounded as if he meant it.

In addition to Reagan, Eddie found two other towers of strength in Frey & Company. They were Chuck Stoneham, the copy chief, and Pat Vernon who headed the art department.

Stoneham was that rare breed of copy man who is completely without aspirations outside of the advertising business. No desire to turn himself into a successful free lance writer gnawed at his brain. He did not dream of the day when he would withdraw to some ivy tower or green-and-gold island to write novels, great American or otherwise. Tall, lean, pale-faced, almost ascetic-looking, Stoneham actually considered advertising copy not as a stepping stone to something else, but as an art in itself. He was brilliant, tenacious and tireless. Before he would accept any one idea as pat for a given situation, he explored countless other ways of accomplishing the same end. In the process he drove everybody, including himself, crazy. But his final results usually justified the torture it took to get them.

"I understand," Eddie said slowly. "You want to see whether under the new management, Frey & Company can match them."

Northcott nodded. "Just that." Eddie took her handbag from the desk and rose to her feet. "How long will you give us?"

He waved a deprecating hand. "There's no hurry. Any time within the next two or three months. But let me make one thing clear. Even if these other agencies hadn't come into the picture, I'd have wanted a new campaign for Morn-Glo. The present one is getting a little threadbare." He rose and held out his hand. "Best of luck. I'll look forward to seeing what you can do."

Eddie took the hand and gave him a sudden rippling smile. "Even if you have rather put me on a spot, Pat

Vernon was fond of referring to himself as "the last man standing." His philosophy did not seem, however, to interfere with his work. He could make layouts like nobody's business. He and Stoneham were excellent foils for one another.

It was these two gentlemen, together with Dan Reagan and his brother Jeffrey, that Eddie called into her office when she returned from her meeting with Lewis Northcott. She stated the issue simply.

"Northcott," she said, "I've enjoyed this interview very much. Northcott bowed from his great height. "So have I."

And he sounded as if he meant it.

Sun Welcome to Most of Arkansas

Little Rock, Sept. 18 — (A) — One sunny day apparently has erased any major flood threat in Arkansas.

The Little Rock weather bureau reported "practically no rain" anywhere in the state Sunday — for the first time this month.

An abrupt ending of the almost constant rain quickly was reflected in the bureau's river forecast.

The quick flooding Ouachita river has spread over thousands totaling 71,887 tons.

Here is a comparison of tonnage for this year and last, based on revenue department tax reports:

Month	1950	1949
January	99,107	108,164
February	58,327	177,155
March	65,689	82,623
April	25,233	44,119
May	39,343	20,493
June	73,323	32,825
July	54,757	31,498

The 1949 tonnage fell below the one million mark for the first time in four years. Annual production, based on tax payments:

Month	1949
August	14,991,348 tons.
September	18,481,783,907 tons.
October	18,471,445,472 tons.
November	19,461,590,878 tons.

Chinese Reds Trained North Korean Army

Lake Success, Sept. 18 — (P) — General Douglas MacArthur was reported today to have informed the United Nations he has positive evidence that Russia supplied munitions to North Korea in 1949 and 1950 and that a Communist China supplied "trained manpower."

Informed quarters said MacArthur made his statement in his latest report to the security council as commander of U. N. forces in Korea. The report was received by U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie this morning, but it has not yet been made public.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik has insisted that Russia has given the Korean Communists no military supplies since 1948, when the Soviet army was withdrawing from North Korea. There was no indication what kind of munitions MacArthur referred to nor whether his reference to Chinese "trained manpower" meant troops, advisers, or perhaps technicians.

Chinese Nationalist Delegate T. F. Tsing charged last week that two Chinese Red divisions from Manchuria were in action in Korea but U. N. sources said they had no confirmation of this.

Home Defense Planned by Conference

Washington, Sept. 18 — (P) — During a last-minute hitch, a Senate committee was expected to put the finishing touches today on a bill to tighten home-front defenses against Communists, spies and saboteurs.

Tentative agreement on a compromise between separate Senate and House measures was announced Friday. However, the conference committee delayed final approval until the actual wording was worked out by legislative draftsmen.

Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) told a reporter in advance of today's meeting he thought the compromise accepted without substantial change the week-end was likely to be more than a draft whipped into shape over night.

McCarran, who is chairman of the conference committee, would not disclose any details.

Lawmakers in close touch with the situation, however, reported that the compromise retains, although in somewhat modified form, a Senate provision for the interment of dangerous subversives in certain emergencies.

Another principal feature not in substantial dispute because it was common to both the House and Senate measures, would require the registration of communists and communist-front organizations.

The legislation also would ban communists from federal jobs or work in defense plants, put into effect conspiracies to set up foreign-controlled dictatorships, give the government new legal weapons to deal with spies and saboteurs and tighten immigration barriers against subversive aliens.

The final version agreed on by the conferees will be sent to the House for action first and then will go to the Senate. Sponsors hope to get it through both branches on Wednesday.

Marshall Is Now Minister of Defense

Washington, Sept. 18 — (P) — President Truman signed today the bill allowing Gen. George C. Marshall to become secretary of defense.

The White House said Marshall's formal nomination to the post would be sent to the Senate for confirmation at once.

President's Secretary Charles C. Ross said Marshall has asked that he be sworn into office at the Pentagon without any special ceremony. He can't take the oath, of course, until the Senate approves him or before Louis Johnson steps out as defense secretary tomorrow.

He had been ill two weeks. At the time of his death, Gordon was president of the southern safety council and a director of the Arkansas safety council. He was a former member of the national safety council.

He played high school football at McAlester, Okla., where he was born, and at Sand Springs, Okla., ranking as all-state quarterback for four straight years, 1917-1920.

Survivors include his wife and one son, Tommy, a student at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. Funeral services will be at the First Presbyterian church here at 5 p. m. today.

Blanket Delay Work to Be Delayed

Hot Springs, Sept. 18 — (P) — Construction of the $31,000,000 Blodden mountain dam on the Ouachita river near here will be delayed about a month by a break in the earthen dam which diverted the water from the construction site.

The rain-soaked stream pushed a 100-foot hole in the earthen structure Saturday. The water was reported dropping today.

Dam builders said they would have to wait for the water to recede considerably before they would know how much repair would be necessary.

The estimate of at least a month's delay in actual dam construction was made by William L. Machmeyer, acting resident engineer.

McMurry, a World War Two combat veteran, also criticized administrative waste.

At least that's the way the scores of chalk-faced comics with the Dailey Brothers Circus find it. They spend the winter months thinking up new comedy with which to delight young and old under the billowing big top when the circus is on tour.

Often, a laugh comes as a surprise and quite by accident, and there-after becomes a regular part of the routine. So much is going on in the five rings of the huge railroad circus with its hundreds of horses, 25 elephants, other rare wild animals and its daredevils of the air, the rings and the hippodrome track that the clowns are hard pressed to make more than a fleeting impression as their tomfoolery is woven into the kaleidoscopic pattern of the performance.

A clown's face is his fortune and although it might seem that they look a lot alike, each clown actually has a separate and distinct facial design and color combination and no other laugh provoker copies it.

The big show comes to Hope Thursday, September 21, for afternoon and night performances at 3 and 9 p. m. at Proving grounds Road.

UN Delegates in Crucial Meet Tuesday

By A. I. GOLDBERG

Lake Success, Sept. 18 — (P) — Diplomats of the 59 United Nations converged on New York today for the crucial fifth general assembly opening tomorrow afternoon at Flushing Meadow.

Headed by foreign ministers of the Big Three and the North Atlantic council who have been studying for a week how to rearm Germany, a score of delegates gathered for the meeting as news of the U. N. collective security action in Korea continued bright.

The Atlantic council ministers meet today in New York (at 10 a. m. EST) expecting to announce before nightfall full agreement on the creation of an international army to defend Western Europe.

There were no indications last night, however, that they had found any compromise formula for including German units in this force.

While U. S. Secretary of State Acheson has asked agreement in principle on German participation, French Foreign Minister Schuman so far has been unwilling to agree. Allied diplomats remained hopeful that the problem could be worked out within a few weeks.

The Big Three — Britain, the United States and France — will meet again after the council winds up to complete discussions on ending a state of war with Germany. The meeting may be tonight or tomorrow morning.

Tuesday's assembly is scheduled to be called to order about 1 p. m. (CST) by Carlos P. Romulo, Philippines foreign minister and retiring president.

Late arrivals will include foreign minister and retiring president.

Late arrivals will include Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky and most of the rest of his Russian delegation, arriving in the Queen Elizabeth, due at 10 a. m. (CST) tomorrow.

A minute of silent prayer or meditation follows the fall of Romulo's gavel. Then the Chinese Communist representation issue is expected to explode immediately with a demand from Vishinsky that the Chinese Nationalists be thrown out of the assembly and the Communists seated.

Russia has plugged in vain in committees and in the security council for nearly a year to get Red China seated.

Vishinsky's move is expected before the assembly can vote on a new president. Leading candidates to succeed Romulo are Sir Mohammed Zafrullah Khan, Pakistan foreign minister, and Nasrollah Entezam, Iran chief delegate who was chairman of the important special political committee last year.

Registration, Brookwood school Mrs. Delton Houston, president; Mrs. George Wright, of Brookwood, Mrs. Royce Smith of Garland, and Mrs. J. T. Bowden of Paisley co-workers.

Printing, High School, Mrs. Claude Tillery, president, with Mrs. A. W. Amour, and Mrs. Paul Raley, co-workers.

Hospitality, Mrs. George Robinson, city council president.

This will be a very interesting and inspirational school meeting and all parents, teachers, and those interested in any phase of school work are urged to be present.

DOROTHY DIX

Tip to Husbands

Dear Miss Dix: What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. You are always telling women what they should do to retain their husbands' love. Why not tell men what they should do to keep their wives' interest in them alive? We no more admire unshaven, slovenly husbands than men do slovenly wives. Marriage does not blind us to the fact that there are other attractive men in the world any more than it makes our husbands unaware that there are other charming women. After all, love has been woman's game since time immemorial. So men need advice on this subject more than we.

MRS. S. J.

Answer: You are quite right in saying that women are fickle even as men are, and that wives fall out of love with their husbands just as easily as men fall out of love with their wives. And this is a fact that men do not sufficiently appreciate. They cling blindly to the theory that there is something curious in a woman's make-up that enables her to love the unlovable.

Women are no more enamored of a three-day's beard than men are of cold cream and curl papers. Nor does any woman see in a slovenly man, who thinks home is a place where you can go about in a soiled collar and your stocking feet, the hero of her girlish dreams.

Mistreated Women

Most of the disgruntled wives in the world, the women who are peevish and fretful and complaining, the neurotic semi-invalids, the slack housekeepers and the extravagant women, are the direct results of men believing that no matter how they treated their wives they go on worshiping them, and so it isn't any use in bothering to keep their wives in love with them.

They didn't think it was worthwhile to dress up for wife and try to be easy on her eyes; they thought a grunt was all the conversation that was necessary to come her way and made no attempt to entertain her. They never noticed what she had on, or paid her a compliment, or did anything to interest and amuse her, so wife got bored with such an uninteresting companion and took to fretting and complaining or buying things by way of revenge, and said, in effect, "Oh, heck, what's the use?"

When girls work side by side with men in offices and get just as much pay it is just as much her part to pay as it is the boy's. In fact, if a girl doesn't furnish her own cigarettes and go dutch treat with the boys and make it up some way by inviting them to her house to meals or furnishing the car when they go out or pretending to have theatre tickets now and then, she is rather a grafter.

Only two of the 36 linemen on the roster of the New York football Yanks are under six feet tall.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I was engaged to a widow but through some misunderstanding we quarreled and parted and I went to another city to live. While there I became closely acquainted with another woman. I learned to like her, but she is madly in love with me. I returned home, whereupon this woman insisted upon visiting me quite often in the interest of an early marriage. In the meantime, the widow and I made up and I realized more than ever that it is she whom I love. I very much want to marry the widow, but fear the other woman will become heartbroken and despondent.

A. B. H.

Answer: It must be terrible to be such a devil of a chap among the women, but I am afraid you will have to decide which one of those lovely ladies you prefer, since the law takes a narrow view of marriage and limits us to one spouse at a time.

Apparently you are a sympathetic man and don't like to hurt the feelings of a lady, but how can you help it since both women love you and you can marry only one?

Such being the case, I think that you should marry the woman you love rather than the one who loves you. That would insure the greatest amount of happiness to the greatest number, I might, indeed, say.

Legal NoticeNOTICE OF SALE OF SCHOOL*BONDS

Washington School District No 12 of Hempstead County, Arkansas, hereby gives notice that it will sell to the highest bidder for cash its proposed issue of $32,500 in 3% refunding and construction school bonds dated September 1, 1950, interest payable semi-annually, and maturing serially on March 1 of each year as follows:

$1,000 in 1952 to 1955; inclusive

1,500 in 1956 to 1961, inclusive

2,000 in 1962 to 1967, inclusive

2,500 in 1968, 1969 and 1970

The bonds are payable in the first instance from the proceeds of a ten mill building fund tax to be voted by the electors of the District, which will continue annually until all the bonds and interest are paid in full. In addition they will be secured by a pledge of all other revenue that the District can legally pledge.

The buyer may name the place of payment and trustee, and may have the right to convert the bonds to a lower rate of interest, substantially according to the Universal Bond Values Tables, and subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Education. The buyer will be expected to pay the expenses of the issue, including the printing and trusteeing of the bonds and the fee of Townsend & Townsend Attorneys, Little Rock, upon whose approving opinion the bonds will be issued. The bonds will be callable for payment prior to maturity in inverse numerical order at par and accrued interest, as follows:

From surplus in the building fund, on any interest paying date on and after September 1, 1955.

The sale will be held upon auction bids at 1:00 o'clock P. M., on the 4th day of October, 1950, in the office of the Superintendent of Schools in Washington, Arkansas.

Each bidder will be required to file a certified check in the sum of $100 to account that he is a member of the Association of the District, to be held as liquidated damages if the bidder is awarded the sale of the bonds and fails to complete the purchase. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned promptly. The District reserves the right to reject any and all bids. For further information address the undersigned.

GIVEN this 8th day of September, 1950.

Some Facts
About 81st
Congress

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Sept. 18 (AP) — The 81st congress is almost finished. It may be able to fold up and go home this week.

This congress — controlled by the Democrats who won a majority of the seats in the 1948 election — came into existence in January, 1949.

The 82nd congress will take over in January, 1951. There will be some new faces in that congress.

It will be up to the voters in the November elections to decide whether to keep the Democrats in control or give the Republicans the majority.

The 81st congress began on a rising tide of prosperity, got a scarce in the summer of 1949 when business slumped a bit, and then relaxed as things got good again.

But just a year later, in the early summer of 1950, this same congress had to face a great emergency:

Fighting in Korea broke out and this country threw in troops to stop the invasion of Republican South Korea by the North Korean Communists.

Shocked when it saw how poorly prepared this country was to fight a war, congress began voting huge sums of money to build up defenses here and among American allies abroad.

The 81st congress voted this country into a long-range re-armament program and other congresses will have to carry on from there.

As an example of how congress reacted: The armed forces were going to get about $15,000,000,000. Now they'll get about double that figure.

What did this 81st congress do? It may be easier to mention first the things it didn't do — or, rather, the things which President Truman asked it to do but which got ignored, swamped, or stopped:

The 81st congress did not repeal the Taft-Hartley act; it did not provide federal aid for education; it put through none of Mr. Truman's civil rights program.

Mr. Truman wanted a national health program, but congress brushed that aside. And although he had wanted a universal military training program, he didn't get it. (Later, under pressure of the Korean crisis, congress got ready to consider it. Mr. Truman said, in effect, wait until next year.)

This is what the 81st congress did, starting with its first session, which began in January, 1949, and ended that same year:

It continued the Marshall plan for helping Europe; approved the North Atlantic treaty; voted military aid to America's European allies; started a big slum-clearance and low-cost housing program; extended the reciprocal trade agreements act; changed the 1947 armed forces unification law to make it work better; increased minimum wages — from 40 cents to 75 cents an hour — for people who work for companies which do business across state lines.

The second session of this 81st congress, beginning in January, 1950, and winding up now, did these things:

Improved and widened the social security system to increase the benefits and bring more people under its protection; authorized economic controls such as price and wage controls (which Mr. Truman asked for in 1948 but didn't get when things were quiet) because of the new defense program; and, for the same reason, gave the government power over production; removed the limit on the size of the armed forces; continued the Marshall plan; killed almost all federal rent control, effective Jan. 1, 1951; began an interstate crime investigation; widened the draft law to bring doctors and dentists under it, up to the age of 50; gave veterans a number of benefits; and —

Upended income taxes of individuals and corporations (because of some dispute between house and senate on details, this is not yet law but soon will be); and —

Both houses approved an anti-subversive bill to make it tough for communism in this country. This bill was to be sent to the White House after ironing out of houses.

It's not definite that this anti-subversive measure will become law. If Mr. Truman vetoes it, congress will face the question of voting it into law over his veto.

Attlee Forced to Gamble on Steel Issue

London, Sept. 18 (AP) — Informed sources say a threatened Labor party revolt forced Prime Minister Attlee to risk defeat by putting the touchy steel nationalization issue to a house of commons vote tomorrow.

They said Attlee fully realized that placing the appointment of a government steel board before the commons in the midst of the defense crisis would expose his regime to an attempted knockout blow by the Conservatives.

The house debates tomorrow a motion of censure against the government by Winston Churchill. Most observers believe Attlee's government will squeeze through the vote, but perhaps by the narrowest possible margin. But should the Laborites lose the vote, a general election would follow.

QUICK

Quick Shutdown

Taking a unit "off the line" requires accurate knowledge of the hundreds of valves in a compressor station. It takes muscle too.

Quick Coordination

Before the shutdown, every dispatcher and station chief on the 1,600 mile route must be notified. This takes but a minute on special direct telephone lines.

CHANGE ARTISTS

Repair Engines in Minutes on Big Inch Natural Gas Lines

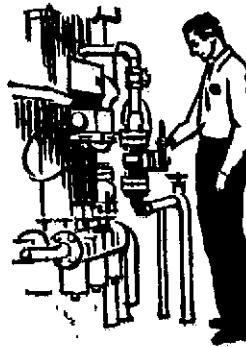

Keeping the 200 huge compressors on the Inch Lines going night and day 365 days a year is a big job. It is a "must" job too, because these pipe lines are the life lines of industries which are striving today to meet both the needs of consumers at home and armed forces abroad.

Skilled station crews need only minutes to repair a giant 1,000-horsepower compressor and put it back to work carrying its essential share of three quarters of a billion cubic feet of natural gas each day.

Quick Repairs

Crew replaces worn valves on compressor cylinder. Spare part assemblies are kept at hand for any emergency. Rest of cylinder is checked while work proceeds.

Quick Start-Up

Compressed air tanks start the big gas engine rolling again as soon as the last nut is tightened. Ten minutes after shutdown, the unit is back "on line."
